

Expiring Provisions

Bonus Depreciation and Code Section 179 Expense Deduction

The 2012 Taxpayer Relief Act extends the additional 50 percent bonus depreciation allowance for one year to apply to qualifying property acquired and placed in service before January 1, 2014 (or before January 1, 2015, in the case of property with a longer production period and certain noncommercial aircraft). There is no limit on the total amount of bonus depreciation that may be claimed.

Qualified Property. Property that is eligible for bonus depreciation must be new property (i.e., property the original use of which begins with the taxpayer) that is:

- › tangible property
- › that is depreciable under MACRS, with a recovery period not exceeding 20 years;
- › purchased computer software;
- › water utility property;
- › or qualified leasehold improvement property.

The fifty-percent bonus depreciation deduction is taken before regular depreciation is computed for the year property is placed in service. As with any accelerated depreciation, however, a large current depreciation deduction results in smaller future deductions. Many states do not recognize bonus depreciation, so taxpayer's should be aware of a state add back.

Vehicles. For passenger automobiles placed in service in 2013, the deduction limitations for the first three years are $3,160 ($11,160 if bonus depreciation applies), $5,100, and $3,050, respectively, and $1,875 for each succeeding year. For trucks and vans first placed in service in 2013, the deduction limitations for the first three years are $3,360 ($11,360 if bonus depreciation applies), $5,400, and $3,250, respectively, and $1,975 for each succeeding year.

The expense deduction allowed by Code Section 179 is independent of the bonus depreciation allowance. The Code Section 179 deduction is computed first, and the taxpayer's basis in the qualifying property is reduced by the amount of that deduction. Any bonus depreciation deduction is computed on the remaining basis in the property.

For tax years beginning in 2012 and 2013, the 2012 Taxpayer Relief Act increases the Code Section 179 dollar limit to $500,000 and the investment limit to $2 million. For purposes of Code Section 179, qualifying property is depreciable tangible property that is purchased for use in an active trade or business. This includes off-the-shelf computer software placed in service before 2014.

A taxpayer may also elect to treat qualified real property as Code Section 179 property. However, only $250,000 of the cost of qualified real property may be expensed. Qualified real property generally consists of qualified leasehold improvements, qualified retail improvement property, and qualified restaurant improvement property.

Many times there are no federal advantages between choosing Code Section 179 expensing or bonus depreciation. For example, both deductions are allowed in full for AMT purposes. However, certain important distinctions do exist.

Unlike the Code Section 179 allowance, there is no taxable income or investment income limitation on the amount of additional (bonus) first year depreciation claimed. However, like the Code Section 179 deduction, the entire additional (bonus) first year depreciation allowance may be claimed in a short tax year. The Code Section 179 allowance may only be claimed on property that is used more than 50 percent for business purposes. On the other hand, the additional (bonus) first year depreciation allowance applies to eligible property whether it is used for trade or business purposes or investment/production of income purposes.

Used and new property Code Section 1245 property qualifies for the Code Section 179 expense allowance without regard to the recovery period. Only new property with an MACRS recovery period of 20 years or less qualifies for additional (bonus) first year depreciation. Therefore, a taxpayer should generally first expense property that does not qualify for bonus depreciation.

States may or may not impose limits on the Code Section 179 allowance and additional (bonus) first year depreciation. Taxpayers should be certain they understand the differences in state tax treatment as this may determine which form of depreciation is chosen for 2013.

Continued ▼

Both bonus depreciation and the increases in the Code Section 179 expense deduction and investment limits are meant to provide temporary incentives for business investment and are set to expire at the end of 2013. Unless there is further legislative action, the deduction limit is set at $25,000, and the investment limitation is set at $200,000 for tax years beginning in 2014.

Tax Credits

Research Credit. The 2012 Taxpayer Relief Act extends the research credit to apply to any amounts paid or incurred for qualified research and experimentation before January 1, 2014.

Work Opportunity Credit. The work opportunity credit for all targeted groups is extended through December 31, 2013. Therefore, the credit applies with respect to wages paid to persons who begin work for the employer before January 1, 2014.

Targeted groups include, among others:

- › qualified individuals in families receiving certain government benefits;
- › qualified individuals who receive supplemental social security income or long-term family assistance;
- › veterans who are members of families receiving food stamps, who have service-connected disabilities, or who are unemployed;
- › qualified summer youth employees; and
- › ex-felons hired no more than one year after the later of their conviction or release from prison.

Differential Wage Credit for Activated Military Reservists. Eligible small employers can claim a tax credit for up to 20 percent of the military differential wage payments it makes to activated military reservists through December 31, 2013.

Recognition Period for S Corporation Built-in Gains

For tax years beginning in 2012 and 2013, for purposes of computing the built-in gains tax, the recognition period is the five-year period beginning with the first day of the first tax year for which the corporation was an S corporation.

The built-in gains tax can be triggered by downsizing or other business survival decisions, including the disposal of unused assets to raise needed cash. Consequently, the relief provided by the shorter recognition period may be valuable for small family or privately-owned businesses.

Small Business Stock

The 100-percent exclusion allowed for gain on the sale or exchange of qualified small business stock under Code Section 1202 has been extended. The stock must be acquired before January 1, 2014, and then held for more than five years by non-corporate taxpayers. Preferential AMT treatment also applies. The exclusion under Code Section 1202 after 2013 reverts to 50 percent.

Other Provisions Expiring at 2013 Year-End

- › Enhanced deduction for charitable contributions of food inventory;
- › Tax incentives for empowerment zones;
- › Indian employment credit;
- › Low-income tax credits for non-federally subsidized new buildings;
- › Low-income housing tax credit treatment of military housing allowances;
- › Adjusted-basis reduction of stock after S corporation charitable donation of property.

Revised Repair/Capitalization Rules

The IRS recently issued long-awaited comprehensive final rules on the treatment of payments to acquire, produce or improve tangible property. Starting January 1, 2014, businesses must use these new rules in determining whether they can deduct their costs as repairs under Code Section 162(a) or must capitalize the costs, to be recovered over a period of years under Code Section 263(a). Businesses will benefit if certain procedures for treating expenses are put into place by January 1, 2014. Some businesses will be better off if they start applying the new rules retroactively to the 2012 and 2013 tax years. Many of these decisions require advance planning.

Tax Planning Summary

Business tax planning involves, not only economic planning for that year, but also making wise tax decisions that will benefit the business for years to come. Tax-saving strategies must take into account short-term and long-term goals so that decisions made for the current tax year also represent sound tax decisions in following years. Often, because business planning opportunities must be viewed in conjunction with personal tax planning, a taxpayer should also consider planning tips affecting their individual return and investment considerations when making business decisions. Please contact your Keiter representative or our office to discuss the 2013 tax planning strategies that may apply to you.

Main: 804.747.0000 | information@keitercpa.com

---

Stay in touch >

Information provided by Keiter is intended for reference only. The information contained herein is designed solely to provide guidance to the reader, and is not intended to be a substitute for the reader seeking personalized professional advice based on specific factual situations. This information does NOT constitute professional accounting, investment, tax or legal advice and should not be interpreted as such.

Although Keiter has made every reasonable effort to ensure that the information provided is accurate, Keiter, and its shareholders, managers and staff, make no warranties, expressed or implied, on the information provided. The reader accepts the information as is and assumes all responsibility for the use of such information. All information contained is protected by copyright and may not be reproduced in any form without the expressed, written consent of Keiter. All rights are reserved.